

Statement from the Faculty Senate of Baylor University

The Baylor University Faculty Senate expresses support for our colleagues at the University of Evansville in their bid for shared governance. At Baylor, we understand shared governance as “a communication process which encourages responsible participation and open discussion, and provides opportunities to present diverse points of view resulting in increased advice to the University administration for enhanced quality in decisions” (Faculty Handbook). We believe that institutions of higher education benefit from the robust practice of shared governance with the faculty.
